3. The acts containing rules, norms or restrictions of the fundamental rights and freedoms of the individual, as well as with a direct impact on them shall be made public by posting in public places or in the official internet site, within 48 hours since the approval of the act by the public authorities.

Article 8

Register of applications and responds

1. The public authority shall create, keep and make public a specific record, reflecting the entire applications for information and the information made available in response. This register shall be updated every 3 months and it shall be made public on the internet site of the public sector body, as well as in the premises of the public sector body for the reception of the public. The identity of the applicants of information shall not be reflected in the register.
2. The Commissioner for the Right to Information and the Protection of the Personal Data shall set out standards for the format and contents of the register.

Article 9

Information made available previously

1. The public authority shall make arrangements that the information, being made available at least once to one applicant, be made available in the most practical way possible for all the other persons eventually applying for it in the future.
2. The applications to be informed about the information recorded in the Register of Applicants and Responds shall be fulfilled no later than 3 working days from the moment of filing the request.

Article 10

Powers of the coordinator for the right to information

1. The public sector body shall, to the effect of coordinating the efforts for ensuring the right to information, nominate one of the civil servants as coordinator for the right to information.

2. The coordinator for the right to information shall assume the following powers:
- a) providing access to every applicant to the public information in accordance with this law, by way of consulting the original document or obtaining a copy;
 - b) establishing, maintaining, publishing and updating the register of applications and responds within the period provided for in point 1 of Article 8 of this law;
 - c) coordinating the efforts for meeting the applications for information within the time period and way provided for in this law;
 - ç) registering the applications for information and assigning a serial number for each of them;
 - d) forwarding the application for information to another public sector body, within the deadline set out by law, upon emerging that the public authority where the application has been lodged does not possess the information applied for;
 - dh) verifying the cases of making the information available free of charge to citizens in accordance with point 5, Article 13, of this law;
 - e) making the preliminary notifications under Articles 14 and 15 of this law, as well as communicating with the applicant, as appropriate for processing the application for public information.

CHAPTER III ACCESS TO PUBLIC INFORMATION

Article 11

Application for information

1. The application for information shall be made in writing and shall be submitted in person, per post or e-mail, providing accurately the identity and signature of the applicant. The application shall always be registered with the Register of Applications and Responds, provided for in Article 8 of this law.
2. The application shall always be registered and a serial number shall be assigned to it. The serial number shall, along with the contact data of the coordinator for the right to information, be notified to the applicant having filed the application for information.
3. The applications for information shall be registered in accordance with the lodging sequence and processed without any distinction among them.
4. The application for information shall contain:
 - a) name and surname of the applicant;
 - b) postal or electronic address where the information shall be sent to;
 - c) description of the information applied for;
 - ç) format that the information is preferred to be obtained;
 - d) any data that the applicant deems could facilitate the identification of the information applied for.
5. As long as the application does not determine the format where the information has been applied for, it shall be provided in the most effective and lost cost fashion for the public sector body.

Article 12

Elucidating and processing the application for information

1. Where the public authority being addressed by the application for information is not clear about the contents and the nature of the request, it shall immediately, and under no circumstances later than 48 hours since the date of submission of the application, contact the application to make the necessary clarifications. The public authority shall always assist the applicant for elucidating the request.
2. Where after examining the application the public sector body finds out that it does not possess the required information, it shall, no later than 10 calendar days since the date of submission of the application, send it to the competent authority, simultaneously informing also the applicant. The sole reason justifying the sending of the application to the other public sector body is the absence of the information applied for.
3. The public sector body being addressed by the application for information shall inform the applicant that his application has been forwarded to another public sector body, also informing him about the contacts of the public sector body that the application has been forwarded to.

Article 13

Service costs

1. The services of the public administration are free of charge. Making information available may occur against a charge, set out and made public in advance by the public sector body in its internet site and in the premises of the public reception. The charge shall be the cost for the reproduction of the information applied for and, as appropriate, for sending it. The information applied for electronically shall be provided free of charge.
2. The reproduction costs shall not be higher than the real cost of materials, whereon the information is re-produced. The posting costs can not be higher than the average cost for the same cost in the market.
3. The Commissioner for the Right to Information and Protection of Personal Data shall, periodically and in cooperation with the Ministry of Finance, consider the charges made public by the public sector bodies and, as appropriate, order their change.
4. The citizens registered appropriately in the social aid schemes as well as the beneficiary entities shall, in accordance with the Law no 10 039, dated 22/12/2008 "On legal aid", as amended, obtain the information free of charge up to a certain number of pages for every application and in the equivalent value as long as the information is provided in another format.
5. The Minister of Justice and the Minister of Finance shall, upon joint instruction, determine the number of pages within which the information is obtained free of charge under point 4 of this Article, as well as the cases of exclusion from the payment of the charge.

Article 14

Ways of making the information available

1. The entire applications for information shall normally be dealt with through the consultation of the information at the premises of the public sector body free of charge, through the unique governmental portal e-albania.al or, as appropriate, through the official internet site.
2. The applications pertaining to written documents shall be processed by making available to the applicant:
 - a) a full copy in the same format as the one used by the public sector body, except in specific cases;
 - b) a full copy of the information via e-mail, as long as the information exists or is convertible to such a format.
3. With regard to the applications referring to other formats, the information shall be provided in the most efficient way and at the lowest cost for the public sector body.
4. The negative decision concerning the requested format shall always be provided in writing and provided with grounds.

Article 15

Deadlines for obtaining the information

1. The public sector body shall process the application for information through making available the information applied for as soon as possible, however not later than 10 days since the day of its submission, unless a specific law provides for differently.
2. Where the public sector body receiving an application for information sends it to another body, the latter shall respond within 15 working days since the delivery of the application with the former body.
3. The deadline provided for in points 1 and 2 of this Article may be extended by not more than 5 working days due to one of the following reasons:
 - a) need to apply for and consider complex and voluminous documents;
 - b) need to extend the research to offices and premises being physically separated from the central office of the public sector body;
 - c) need to consult other public sector bodies prior to making a decision on fulfilling or refusing the application. The decision to extend the time period shall be notified immediately to the applicant.
4. The failure to process the application for information within the deadlines referred to above shall always be considered a refusal.
5. The provisions of this law shall apply also to the access to the archived information of any type.

Article 16

Preliminary notifications for the applicant

1. Where the public sector body finds out that the processing of an application for information is subject to a high cost or it requires a longer time than the deadline provided for in point 1 of Article 14 of this law, the body shall immediately inform the applicant and propose to him the possibility of amending the application.

2. If the information is sought in electronic format and it is available in internet, the public sector body shall immediately indicate to the applicant the accurate address of the internet site where the information can be found. If the information is not sought in an electronic format, the public sector body cannot respond to the application by indicating to the applicant the accurate address of the internet site where the information is available electronically.

3. Upon receiving the application for information, the public sector body shall calculate the amount due to be paid for the re-production and, as appropriately, for sending the information and shall immediately inform hereof the applicant. The rules on the way of making the payment shall be set out in a joint instruction of the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Finance.

CHAPTER IV RESTRICTION OF THE RIGHT TO INFORMATION

Article 17 Restrictions

1. The right to information may be restricted as long as it is indispensable, proportional and where making the information available would harm the following interests:

- a) the right to privacy;
- b) the commercial secrets;
- c) the copyright;
- ç) patents.

The restriction of the right to information due to the interests provided for in letters "a", "b", "c" and "ç" of this point shall not be applied where the holder of these rights has granted his consent to making the respective information available or, at the moment of making the information available, he has been considered as a public sector body based on the provisions of this law. Regardless of what has been foreseen in this point, the required information shall not be rejected as long as a higher public interest exists in favour of making it available.

2. The right to information may be restricted as long as it is indispensable, proportional and where making the information available would cause an evident and grave harm to the following interests:

- a) national security, referring to the definition made by the legislation on classified information;
- b) prevention, investigation and prosecution of criminal offences;
- c) normal flow of the administrative review in the context of disciplinary proceedings;
- ç) normal flow of inspection and auditing procedures for the public sector bodies;
- d) working out the monetary and fiscal policies of the state;
- dh) parity of parties in judicial proceedings and normal flow of judicial proceedings;

e) preliminary consultation or discussion internally or among the public sector bodies for developing public policies;

ë) maintaining the international and inter-governmental relations. Notwithstanding the provisions of the first paragraph of point 2 of this Article, the sought information shall not be rejected as long as a higher public interest exists in making it available. The restriction to the right to information due to the interest provided for in point 2, letter “c” and “ç” of this Article, shall not be applied as long as the administrative review in the context of disciplinary proceedings and the inspection and auditing procedures of the public sector bodies have been completed. The restriction to the right to information due to the interest provided for in point 2, letters “d” and “dh” of this Article, shall not be applied as long as the respective data are facts, facts analysis, technical data or statistical data. The restriction to the right to information due to the interest provided for in point 2, letter “e” of this Article shall not be applied as long as the policies have been made public.

3. The right to information shall be restricted as long as it is indispensable, proportional and as long as the dissemination of information would infringe the professional secret sanctioned by law.

4. The right to information shall be restricted even if, regardless of the assistance granted by the public sector body, the application remains unclear and it is not possible to identify the sought information.

5. The right to information shall not be rejected automatically as long as the sought information is found at documents classified “state secret”. The public sector body having received the application for information shall, under these circumstances, immediately start the procedure revising the classification at the public sector body having ordered the classification under the law no 8457, dated 11/02/1999 “On the “state secret” classified information”, as amended. The public sector body shall immediately inform the applicant about the institution of the procedure revising the classification in accordance with the law and determine the extension of the time period for making the information available within 30 working days. The decision on fulfilling the application for information or not shall always be taken and grounded based on the criteria contained in this Article.

6. Where the restriction affects the information only partially, the remaining part shall not be rejected to the applicant. The public sector body shall clearly indicate the parts of the respective documentation having been rejected, as well as based on which point of this Article the rejection was ruled.

7. The provisions of this Article shall be implemented even to the access to the archived information of any type, regardless of the provisions of the law on the archives.
